Former Minister of Justice, P. A. Alberti, Sentenced.

POPULAR OFFICIAL

of His Bank-Revelation ing Frauds Scandalized Country.

Copenhagen. December 17.—Former Minister of Justice P. A. Alberti, the revelation of whose banking frauds in the fall of 1998 scandalized the country, was to-day sentenced to eight years' penal servitude. Alberti suffered a physical collapse in March, 1999, while awaiting trial, and was removed to a hospital, where he remained until sufficiently restored to face his accusers.

ers.

For fourteen years Alberti had held a commanding place, both in politics and finance. He was a member of the Deuntzer ministry, and later dominated the Christensen's cabinet, which he entered as a minister of justice in 1965. As president of the Bondesstandens Sparksse, a savings bank, and of the Danisi, Farmer's Export Association, he was custodian really of enormous funds, to which he began to help himself, according to his own confession, seven years before he accepted the portfolio of justice.

Unpleasant rumors had been in circulation for some time before exposure came, but the minister was the intimate of King Frederick, and the idol of the poorer classes, and his financial genius, indominable will and brilliant oratory, repeatedly saved him. But the time came when he could no longer cover his tracks, and, hard pressed, Alberti confessed that he had misused the funds of the bank, and that he had systematically robbed the Export Association and its customers from the day it began business in 1888, His necessarily amounted, he said, to about Albert confessed that he had misseed the funds of the bank, and that he had systematically robbed the Export Association and its customers from the day it began business in 1888. His peculations amounted, he said, to about $2,300,000, and the money had been lost in South African and American mining ventures.
